THE COUNTDOWN BEGINS!

Preparations for 2007 Juno Weekend well underway
as major events and venues announced

September 20, 2006, SASKATOON: The Prairie winter storms have yet to start, but springtime in Saskatoon will never be sweeter come next March/April, as The 2007 JUNO Awards, Canada's Music Awards, take over the heart of the nation in what's sure to be the biggest Saskatchewan celebration in years!

"We're off and running with an exciting line-up of events and a diverse range of excellent venues," said Melanie Berry, President of the Canadian Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences (CARAS). "The enormous outpouring of Saskatoon community spirit and support has set the stage for an amazing weekend of Canada's best music."

Just over six months away, preparations for the show are rapidly taking shape. Melanie Berry announced today some of the impressive activities highlighting Juno Weekend, March 30 – April 1, 2007, all topped off by CTV's nationwide broadcast on the Sunday night.

In April, The 2006 JUNO Awards on CTV attracted an average audience of 1.7 million viewers (2+), eclipsing The 48th Grammy Awards broadcast in Canada by 26 per cent and making it the most-watched music awards program of the year. Broadcast in High Definition and 5.1 Surround Sound from the Halifax Metro Centre, The 2006 JUNO Awards peaked with 2.1 million viewers and attracted almost 30 per cent more viewers than the previous year, making it the second-most watched JUNO Awards telecast since Canada's Music Awards were broadcast from St. John's, NL in 2002.

The 2007 JUNO Awards will air on CTV April 1, 2007 from the Credit Union Centre in Saskatoon. Tickets go on sale February 10, 2007.

2007 Juno Weekend Highlights:

Juno Awards Welcome Reception

It all starts here Friday, March 30 at an opening night reception where the Canadian music industry comes together! The kick-off takes place at the Western Development Museum.

Juno Cup Celebrity Hockey Game

Returning for a fourth year, the Juno Cup pits Canadian musicians against former NHL Greats in a friendly fight to the finish! Always a fan favourite, the Juno Cup faces off Friday, March 30 at the Art Hauser Arena in Prince Albert, Saskatchewan. Not just fun to watch, it also supports a good cause. Tickets are on sale February 24 and this year's proceeds will go to MusiCan.

JunoFest

Live music takes over a dozen clubs in downtown Saskatoon. It's a two day music festival featuring performers from many local and national Canadian acts, as well as a number of JUNO nominees. JunoFest is an amazing opportunity to experience a wide range of incredible Canadian music. JunoFest takes place on Friday and Saturday, March 30 and 31, 2007.
